

Degrees of Success:

Transitioning from Vocational to Higher Education in the United Kingdom

Presented by Visiting Scholar Geoff Hayward

Drawing upon evidence from quantitative analysis of large scale administrative data sets, mixed methods case studies, and focused interviews with students, Professor Hayward focuses on the challenges experienced by students making the transition from vocational to higher education in the United Kingdom and the implications for admissions and pedagogical practice within universities.

Geoff Hayward is a Professor of Education and the Head of the Faculty of Education at the University of Cambridge
